Website & Web Application

Care Partner

Care Partner was a clinical health application that enabled NHS users to track their patients. The application centered around a Work List; a list of patients within that ward or location. The project placed emphasis on user interaction and experience due to the nature and environment of the user's. Information needed to be clear and accessible without visual design hindering or obstructing interaction.

I used the results from Microsoft's healthcare research program to define and assist terminology enabling the site to be accessible to screen readers and assistive technology.
